

The Tayside and Fife Archaeological Committee is the area liason group which aims to conserve the historic environment of the region. TAFAC brings together individuals and organisations that share a common interest in promoting and protecting the archaeology of the area. A constant monitor is kept on all archaeological and historical developments in Tayside and Fife. TAFAC is an established consultee on both regional and national issues.

The wide range of papers in this volume includes reports on the recently discovered Bronze Age logboat from the Tay Estuary, a 'Time Team' excavation in Fife and the survival of a late medieval timber roof in a building in Brechin.
